THE BALFOUR DECLARATION AND THE WAILING WALL INCIDENT

At the Balfour Day celebration held in New York to commemorate the eleventh anniversary of the issuance of the Balfour Declaration, the occasion was employed by Dr. Weizmann to support a resolution of protest against the action of the Palestine government in relation to the Wailing Wall incident.

It was ironical that the voicing of Jewish indignation at the outrage of the Palestine government should have synchronized with the festivities which symbolize the proclamation of the so-called charter of Jewish rights. Balfour's historic statement contained the affirmation of the right of the Jewish people to national status in Palestine. The wailing wall occurrence on the Day of Atonement when Jewish worshippers were ruthlessly dispersed by the police from the environs of the sacred mural relic constituted a cynical breach of faith with the Jewish people.

Weizmann and the other speakers on the resolution of protest of course directed their shafts against the Arab agitators, and the Palestine local government for its countenancing of their outrages, the while absolving the British government from all blame. Perhaps, like the mother-in-law of the Jewish proverb, they scolded the son while meaning the daughter-in-law. Professing loyalty to the mandatory power and faith in its fairness and good intentions, they probably figured that their scathing denunciation of the Arabs would not fail to strike home among the colonial office officials.

But need we deceive ourselves and refuse to realize the glaring fact that the British government has deliberately and consistently chosen to violate the spirit of the Balfour Declaration? While the Jewish world is stricken with horror and grief at the indignity, the British High Commissioner in Palestine receives a delegation of Arabs and assures them that the wailing wall situation will remain in statu quo, that is, that the new regulation prohibiting Jews from praying at the west wall, the relic of the old Temple, will remain in force. The Arabs are to blame for refusing to permit Jews to carry on their devotional exercises. The High Commissioner and the Colonial Office who side with them and sanction their actions are to be loved and revered!

Reports from Palestine inform us that the Jews feel crushed by the turn of affairs. For centuries Jews from the world over came to the wailing wall, and in the shadow of the relic of their former glory, wept and prayed to their God. Turkish rule with its benightedness and cruelty never dared to deny Jews the privilege of wailing at the Temple wall. And now under the aegis of the Balfour Declaration when Jews are supposed to enjoy rights of nationhood in Palestine the old privilege has been cancelled! The Palestinian Jews declared their day of mourning. The deprivation is serious enough in itself. It is appalling as a symptom of the fragility of the juridic basis of Jewish life in the Jewish homeland. They expected the Jewish masses throughout the world to raise a mighty roar of protest against the persons or bodies responsible for the situation. They expected

OUR PRIME MINISTER AT GENEVA

RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

"No speech at the session of the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva in September made a more profound impression or rendered more distinct service than that of Premier Mackenzie King of Canada in the Debate on Disarmament." It was good to see this from the pen of an American observer.

Canadians will be pleased to know that their representative created a splendid impression at Geneva, and especially that he allied himself vigorously with the cause of world peace. On the Right Honourable Mr. King's return to Canada, in his first address, he made a significant plea for world peace, and challenged the churches to do more for creating a peace sentiment in the future than they have in the past. It is a sad commentary on institutional religion, when statesmen must remind its priests of their primary duty. But the prime minister's challenge was in order and we hope it will bear results. Too many pulpits have not yet swept out the vestiges of war-hysteria which stampeded them. There seemed too much of pandering to the military and too little to the godly.

The prime minister's challenge seems already to have brought results. Whereas in the past pulpit utterances dealt in vague generalities about world peace, already a loftier note has been struck. Within a few days after the prime minister's remarks some bold, vigorous and exhilarating message about peace went forth from several pulpits. We hope that at the ensuing armistice day service, the dominant note will be less that of glorifying military heroes and more that of stimulating the peace sentiments. Wars and God are irreconcilable. Religion and war cannot be bedfellows. One can neither conceive of Issaiah nor of Jesus plunging a bayonet, no matter what the pretext, in the living entrails of one made in the image of God. If religious institutions would more boldly ally themselves with the cause of world peace, there would be fewer religious cynics and less concern about dwindling church memberships.

We congratulate the prime minister on his spiritual stand for world peace, and know that all Canadians, irrespective of party affiliations, are proud of the record he made for himself and Canada at Geneva.

HOLY BLOSSOM COLLEGE FOR JEWISH STUDIES

We are happy to announce in this column, that under the auspices of the Holy Blossom Synagogue, a College for Jewish studies is being established in the city of Toronto. This college will offer courses in various Jewish subjects. Its faculty is to be composed of the leaders of Jewish thought in the city. It presents an opportunity to adults who seek Jewish knowledge. Though organized under the aegis of a reform synagogue, the subjects taught will have no partisan flavor. The fact that the editor of the Yiddish paper will give a course on the history of Yiddish literature is indicative of the spirit in which the college is being founded. We have in

The "FAME" Virgin Milk
(Genuine Sirroy-Galtier Formula)
Will permanently whiten and beautify the skin
This beneficial skin tonic does a rare thing—it whitens the skin naturally. Other skin whiteners leave a coat of white powder on the skin, but this amazingly satisfactory milk whitens the skin itself, giving it a satiny finish. If you would have your skin appear at its best this winter, try it at once.

New Leader Inducted at Synagogue

Rev. Charles Bender was inducted as rabbi of Shearith Israel congregation at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Sunday, November 4. The service, which was attended by representatives of practically every Jewish congregation in the city, was conducted by the cantor of the synagogue, Rev. I. de la Penha. Rev. Dr. D. de Sola Pool, of New York, who preached the induction sermon, told the new rabbi that, in taking the pulpit of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, he had accepted a position distinguished by a great tradition, as this synagogue, which had been associated with Canadian history for over a century, occupied a unique niche in the Dominion of Canada. A welcome on behalf of local sister congregations and the Jewish community was extended to Rabbi Bender by Rev. Dr. Herman Abramowitz, of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue.

Replying to the address of the guest rabbis, Rabbi Bender said that he felt that the great need on this continent, which was the home of more than one-quarter of all the Jews in the world, was for an interpretation of Judaism which, though it would never jeopardize the basic principles laid down in the Torah, would, nevertheless, understand and sympathize with modern problems and modern conditions.

His own position was a difficult one, he continued. Coming after the illustrious predecessors in the pulpit of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, he felt as Joshua did when he assumed leadership of the children of Israel after the great Moses.

There had been a continuous evolution in the Jewish ministry since biblical times, he stated. There had been the distinctively Spanish period with its learning and culture, the Russian period with its rigidly pietistic ideals, and the German period which fell under the influence of the liberal movement. Today there was another distinctive phase. In order fully to minister to his flock the modern rabbi must, like all true leaders, be a follower in that he followed the needs of his people.

In his induction address, Dr. de Sola Pool said that there were three essential qualifications for entering the rabbinate —a spiritual call, a complete knowledge of the Torah and integrity of character. While a rabbi must bring these qualities to his work there was also something which the congregation owed to its minister. Shearith Israel congregation brought its rabbi a past with a fine

ACQUIRES SOUVENIR

A family relic has recently come into the possession of Mrs. J. S. Leo, 437 Argyle Avenue, Westmount, in an engraved silver salver which was presented to her mother, Mrs. Morris Cohen, in April, 1880, by the Maitland (New South Wales) Benevolent Society, in appreciation of charitable work. The salver is delicately engraved in a pattern of birds and flowering vines, honeysuckle and hawthorn, and is supported by three finely wrought claw feet. The salver was presented to the late Mrs. Cohen on her departure from Maitland for Sydney. An illuminated address, of which Mrs. Leo possesses a photograph, accompanied the gift, bearing the signatures of the eighteen donors, among whom were the wives of local ministers. Until recently the salver was in the possession of relatives in Maitland, who sent it to Mrs. Leo by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Maitland Leo. Mrs. Leo's father went to Australia with his parents as a boy, while her maternal grandparents had settled there a generation earlier. She herself was born in Maitland, and came to Canada after her marriage.

WESTWARD, HO!

All good Canadians realize that Canada is a country to be proud of, but how many, however, have tried to visualize the remarkable variety and vastness of this far-flung Dominion? It is only through travel that the immensity and outstanding natural beauty of our great heritage is realized. Travelling westward to the Pacific coast we pass mighty rushing rivers, innumerable lakes and dense lumbering regions, thence across the wide prairies and through the magnificent Rockies, a revelation of peerless scenic grandeur - then Vancouver and Victoria, those gems of the North Pacific, where the warm Pacific winds make year-round golf possible.

Travel facilities are of the best. Every day the year round "The Vancouver Express," widely known Canadian Pacific transcontinental train, leaves Toronto at 9.00 p.m., making the through trip to Vancouver in four days. Schedule provides for good connections to all western points and any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly arrange for reservations and tickets on request.

COMMENTARIES

MY TEACHER—DR. PHILIPSON

Saturday marked the fortieth anniversary of Rabbi David Philipson's ministry in one pulpit, that of Congregation Bene Israel, Cincinnati, Ohio. Not only Cincinnati Jewry but all of American Israel paused to pay tribute to the dean of the Reform Rabbinate. They who claim that the American environment is unproductive, Jewishly speaking, may well remember that David Philipson is an American-born product. As author, preacher, teacher and scholar, he can well compare with many of the leading rabbis of present-day Europe. He is indeed one of the few outstanding leaders that American Israel has thus far contributed to Jewry. As a disciple of David Philipson, as one who had the privilege to "sit at his feet" and imbibe the words of the Torah, I wish to add my congratulations and good wishes on this sacred occasion. "Ad Meoh V'Esrim Shana."

A FRIEND PASSES!

In the little city of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, died a friend, Joseph Rosenbaum. For five years he was associated with me in Temple work there. I learned to admire and respect him. He was a German Jew, aristocratic and cultured. He ever contributed a note of dignity to the Jewish community. He was respected by Jew and non-Jew. Sabbath after Sabbath I would find myself in his hospitable home where the entire family would gather for the Shabos meal. The Rosenbaum home was ever filled with love and affection. The bonds of love ever united the members of its household both young and old. Joseph Rosenbaum was the patriarch who builded his home wisely. Mine was the hope to have renewed our friendship though distance separated us. But God willed it otherwise. Joseph Rosenbaum is no more. The immortal words of the poet console us:

Friend after friend departs,
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end:
But be not sad nor vainly grieve
When friends from earth must take their leave.

Beyond the flight of time,
Beyond this vale of death,
There surely is some blessed clime
Where life is not a breath,
Nor life's affections, transient fire,
Whose sparks fly upward and expire.

JEWISH PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

I congratulate the fine-spirited leaders of the People's Schools who are working so aggressively on a campaign in the cause of Jewish education. It matters little what shades of Judaism the "Y" represents. The fine thing about this group is that they are "working!" They are building schools! And the most unique thing about this group is that the members belong to the Jewish middle class, not the so-called wealthy. Work on! "God sells everything for the price of labour."

"THE TEN LEADING JEWS"

Readers of Commentaries point out that as yet it is difficult to point to ten really outstanding Jews in the community. They therefore suggest that we have an election for five only. I am willing. A group headed by Ben Yaphe met in "Childs" and elected the following names: 1. Maxwell Goldstein. 2. Michael Hirsch. 3. Lyon Cohen. 4. Sol Kellert. 5. Louis Solomon.

Another group headed by Harry Jacobs sent in the following: 1. Maxwell Goldstein. 2. Michael Hirsch. 3. Lyon Cohen. 4. Sol Kellert. 5. Louis Solomon. 6. Alderman Schubert. 7. Peter Bercovitch. The election is still on.

Among recent news contributions was one saying that: "Inauguration of Kappa Gamma Chapter of Upsilon Lambda Phi fraternity at Hamilton, Ont., took place Sunday, October 21, when the local chapter installed six men from Hamilton. This marks the third Canadian chapter of the largest Jewish high school fraternity in the United States and Canada, the others being in Montreal and Toronto. The complete fraternity now numbers nearly forty active chapters with an enrolment of over a thousand members." . . . Answer: This seems nearly forty active chapters too many in the diffident opinion of this old, sophisticated, out-moded, antediluvian column. Boys, boys, or rather, to be sure, men, men, aren't university fraternities enough without collegiate adventures into snobbery? They'll be organizing in the kindergarten yet.

The Educational and Vocational Fund just created for your support by the Jewish Children's Home in Toronto is something to rest your weary eyes on for once! Through it the orphans in your care will be given "a little more than public schooling." This little more will be decided by the needs of the child with a view to his supporting himself and also his adeptness for it. The fund must be the outgrowth of real feeling in substituted parentage. Some good thoughtful person or people saw the need for it, so here it is. You know, it's true that if you, the Jewish community, are going to be father to the fatherless and mother to the motherless you must do something more for the orphan than clothe and shelter him and send him to school. If the children in the Home were in their own homes, even poor ones, their parents would still yearn and strive to give them that "little more." It is the humane and gracious foster parent in institutions caring for the homeless which seeks to give them more than merely what is decent. It is the added sympathy and insight which makes ever directors of an orphans' home into people who represent to the children something of what a parent should be. A fund of this kind can not fail to appeal to people who have heard many appeals and turned some down. There are no isms or silly, hollow social lines to keep away contributors to this fund at the Children's Home. Any one with money to give can give it instead of personal service to those under the collective care of the community. Few can say in answer to the knowledge that there is such a fund: "I'm not going to give because I don't belong, I don't believe in it, I never met them." Therefore this fund emerges as a pleasure to contributors. It is just what you have been waiting for, because it is something every one belongs to and believes in. If you have children you want the orphans to have a taste of what benefits yours receive. If you have no children, here is a chance to do something for those who are without parental care. There the fund stands. There is no argument. It is all invitation.

Delegates to the convention in Washington of the Protestant Episcopal Church turned homeward after two weeks' session bearing as a gift to their people a message from the House of Bishops to work for world peace, to war upon war. The bishops in their pastoral letter urged the church throughout the country to support all worthy movements for peace, since "the most momentous task facing the world to-day is the warfare against war." The only significant aspect of this momentous deliberation called a message by gentlemen of the cloth is that all religious bodies demand war upon war when the world is in what is termed a state of peace. In time of peace clergymen are always for continued quiet and always against the coming event that casts such a shadow. It is only in time of war that the church is not so strong for peace. Then pastors join the others in telling you that this is the very last time so long as you fight to triumph on the side of God.

The clergy stands by the gallows and by the electric chair. It is for the sake of the soul of the condemned, of course, but if the man of God refused to say the last rites over legal murder there might be carried along with his refusal such a swell of public opinion that capital punishment might be abolished forever in short time. War is another form of legal murder to which ministers lend their aid in time of war. Jew and Gentile in the past performance called the Great War became part of the machinery that sold the war idea, putting off until some far distant day the long-promised beating of pruning hooks into ploughshares. When Rabbi Stephen Wise refused a few years ago to take part in the celebration of the Americas Defense Day designed to glorify war he bitterly denounced those ministers who did take part. He said that they had given assistance in one war and would speak from the pulpit for the next one. This is true and sad. The voice of the spiritual leader is so loud and spiritual when there is no war. People listen idly, apathetically. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. But when the evil day comes and the sword falls, where is that clear ringing voice that multiplied might lead men away from terror and flame?

Editor, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:
5714 Mance Street,
Montreal
October 31, 1928

Will you please use all the influence at your command to try and offset the plans of the City Council to run a new automobile roadway from Pine Avenue to Mount Royal Avenue, east of the present car tracks, that is to say, spoiling the whole of that part of Fletcher's Field from Pine Avenue to Duluth for any recreational games, and making it dangerous on the east of the field from Duluth to Mount Royal because of the new projected speedway. Nearly a year ago, when the subject was first mooted, I wrote to Mayor Martin suggesting that the present car tracks be changed and placed in the centre of Park Avenue, and then widen the street on both sides to the line of the trees. This would give an increased effective width to the road of over forty feet more than ample for all requirements. Make Mance Street a one-way street, going north, and Bleucher Street a one-way street going south as at present. Cars coming up Mance could pass along Pine and up Park Avenue, without having to cross the car tracks as at present, making for speedier traffic without, as would obtain in case taking place at that busy corner. Changing the tracks to the centre of Park Avenue would do away with the dangerous condition of the tracks at Mount Royal Avenue.

Trusting you will use your influence in this matter.

Yours sincerely,
F. BROOKSBANK.

FROM MY DIARY

Leningrad—no longer the capital of Russia. The Soviets are in favour of letting this city vanish, because it is a reminder of their Czars and extravagance. I visited the palaces, mansions and monuments of the nobility; they are ghosts of the past. I visit the home of Baron Ginsberg, the Russian Jew who in the days of the Czar played such an important part. I am told everything he had was confiscated. He escaped from Russia. Most of the beautiful mansions have been converted into workingmen's clubs. His home is now a students' dormitory. Friday night I attend shul, the Shul of Baron Ginsberg. The atmosphere is depressing. Fear, suspicion and insecurity even in shul. I can hardly get anyone to speak freely on the condition of Jewry. I am informed the "cheka" is everywhere, even in shul. And they check up if you speak in derogation of the Bolshevik Government. Sad!

WHAT THE CHILDREN SAY

Subscribers of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW are invited to send in little stories about their youngsters or children they know, what they say and do in interesting situations. Write down what your little one said to-day and mail it to the What-the-Children-Say Editor, REVIEW office, in Toronto or Montreal. Give the child's full name, age, address and the name of his parents. One dollar will be paid for every story printed.

NOVEMBER 9TH

First Jew arrives in New York, 1654. When the good ship Pear Tree (apparently from Holland) arrived in the harbour, it had on board an Ashkenazic Jew named Jacob, son of Samson, usually known as Barsimson. When the vessel had been off the Isle of Wight, indeed, we hear also of a correligionist of his, Jacob Aboaf (perhaps a Venetian): but apparently he never reached America. For some time, Barsimson was the only known Jew in New York, but a short time later he was joined by a party of refugees from Brazil, whose settlement was officially authorized by the Dutch East India Company on April 26th, 1655. Their forerunner continued, however, to play a fairly prominent part in the newly-founded community. He was a man of small means, as his slender quota of taxation shows, but he was not lacking in vigour. Thus he stoutly refused to attend at court on Saturday, and later joined in an appeal from the Jews to be allowed to stand guard like the other inhabitants for the defence of the city instead of admitting their inferiority by the payment of a tax. The two million Jews in New York to-day have no reason to be ashamed of the founder of the community.

NOVEMBER 10TH

Deliverance in Posen, 1687. A number of riotous soldiers, to whom were joined some of the worst elements in the general population of the town, banded themselves together and ranged the streets with the object of making an attack upon the Jewish quarter. The sympathy of the governor was on their side, and he did nothing to impede them. It seemed as though the usual sequence of massacre and spoliation was inevitable. On this occasion, however, the Jews showed a spirit worthy of their heroic fathers. Banding themselves together, they withstood the enemy manfully for three days and three nights, and routed them on every occasion when they made an assault. At last the latter gave up the attempt. The rabbinate of the city thereupon ordained a fast of thanksgiving to be observed year by year upon the fifth of Kislev, on which date the first attack had been repulsed.

NOVEMBER 11TH

The Fourth Lateran Council meets, 1215. Intimidated by the spread of the Albigensian Heresy, the Catholic Church endeavoured in this assemblage to make provision for the protection of the faithful. It was for this reason that it occupied itself in a considerable degree with the arch-unbelievers which it saw in the Jews. All of the old restrictions relating to them, long more honoured in the breach than in the observance, were renewed. Christian debtors, particularly Crusaders, were "protected" against them, the latter being even relieved of the obligation to pay interest on their debts; converts were to be restrained from following their ancestral rites, and Jews were to be rigidly excluded from all public office or position which might give them any semblance of authority over true believers. Worst of all was the provision which instituted, for the first time in the Christian world, the obligation for every Jew to wear a distinctive badge, and thus to be marked out as a parish, for insult and contumely. It was with the Fourth Lateran Council that the anti-Jewish policy of the mediaeval church reached its culmination.

NOVEMBER 12TH

Family names enforced in Austria, 1787. Surnames had been general among Sephardic Jews from the time of the expulsion from Spain, or even earlier, but amongst their Ashkenazic brethren they remained for long afterwards rare in the extreme, each man being known by his name and that of his father. Part of the policy of Aufklarung adopted by the Emperor Joseph II was to end this curious state of affairs. By an edict of November 12th, 1787, he ordered that every Jew should in future assume a surname. Commissions of officers were appointed to supervise this, and if any Jew hesitated or demurred, some name was created and registered out of hand, frequently with ridiculous results. This measure, and the others to which it set the example in other countries, gave rise to the wholesale creation of artificial and sometimes ridiculous surnames, of which the nomenclature of a large portion of Ashkenazic Jewry still bears the traces.

NOVEMBER 13TH

Talmud burned in Poland, 1757. Jacob Frank, finding his claims to be a reincarnation of Sabbatai Zevi spurned by the rabbis, had proclaimed himself to be a follower of the Zohar alone, entirely rejecting the Talmud. Dembowski, Bishop of Kameniec (Podolia), was so impressed by the affinities of the new sect with Christianity that he had ordered a public disputation (June 20th, 1757). The traditional party, poorly represented, was of course adjudged to have been worsted; and it only remained to carry out the sentence of the court. A few months later (November 13th), Dembowski ordered the seizure by the police of all the copies of the Talmud to be found in his diocese. They were piled up together insultingly and burned by the public executioner. Thus, as Graetz remarks, the Cabbala lit the torch which burned the Talmud.

NOVEMBER 14TH

Death of Emil Wildstatter, 1843. At the time associate Rabbi at Karlsruhe, he had made a mark in the Jewish world in spite of his comparative youth (he was only forty-seven years of age at the time of his death). In particular, he is remembered as a preacher, having been one of the notable exponents of the vernacular sermon in Germany; an art foreshadowed by Moses Mendelssohn, founded by Joseph Wolf of Dessau, brought to its fruition by Mannheimer, Geiger, Holdheim, Sachs, and Jellinek, and destined to revolutionize Jewish homiletics in almost every country of Europe, as well as America.

NOVEMBER 15TH

Riots in Paris, 1380. The accession of Charles VI to the throne of France had given rise to hopes that there would be some relief from the crushing taxation imposed by his late father. A mob collected at the instigation of certain of the nobles before the royal palace to make this request. Receiving a favourable reply, they proceeded to demand that the Jews should be driven from the country. This time, they met with a refusal. Enraged, they rushed through the city with cries of "Aux Juifs," and attacked the Jewish quarter. Here they burned, plundered and murdered at will for four days. Of the Jews, the majority escaped and sought refuge in the royal prison, the Châtelet, where they asked to be imprisoned for protection. Many children were meanwhile seized and baptized by force. The Prevost of Paris, Hugues Aubriot, was unable to check the rioting. When the disorders had died down, however, he obtained from the King an order for the restitution of all property that had been seized and the restoration of the baptized children to their parents. On account of this humanity, he was openly accused of being a proselyte to Judaism, forced to do penance publicly, and thrown into a dungeon. Barely more than a year later, the Jews of Paris again suffered in the insurrection of the Maillotins (March 2nd, 1382).

INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Mrs. Fanny Finklestein, age about fifty-five, of 140 George Street, was buried to her neck in bricks, mortar and timbers early Tuesday while in her kitchen, which collapsed about her. The back roof of a garage was lifted by a strong gust of wind and was dropped on to the rear of Mrs. Finklestein's dwelling, causing it to collapse. Only Mrs. Finklestein's head and shoulders were visible to neighbours who witnessed the affair and hastened to her assistance. Prompt action on the part of E. Salter, 93 McRobert Street, and Deputy Fire Chief Sinclair, who were near the scene of the mishap, probably saved Mrs. Finklestein's life.

With absolute disregard for their own limbs, they rushed into the wrecked home and saw the woman pinned down with the debris. They immediately set to work to release her. Hundreds of bricks had to be hurriedly moved and large beams had to be lifted off her body. One of the large beams held her down by the neck so she was unable to move.

Mrs. Finklestein is in St. Michael's Hospital suffering shock, body bruises and lacerations of the face and neck, and although reported to be in a serious condition, the hospital authorities are hopeful she will recover.

Bessie, daughter of Mrs. Finklestein, was upstairs when the kitchen collapsed. She was not hurt, but is suffering as a result of the shock. She was able to get out of the building by the front door. The stairs were not destroyed.

Hirshke Berdichoff, an unsuccessful pianist, seeing what a success the Italians had made as organ grinders, decided to become one himself.

Three days after he started, a policeman came up to him and said, "Have you a license?"

"No," said Hirshke.

"Very well, then, accompany me," the policeman demanded.

"With pleasure," retorted Hirshke, 'what do you want to sing?"

Euclid Talmud Torah

We the workers of the Talmud Torah believe that every Jewish heart knows the great necessity for such important institution like a Talmud Torah where our children must learn their own religion and therefore we have decided to build our Euclid Talmud Torah higher and to make also our poor children a little more comfortable and that is why we, the committee of the Talmud Torah, are appealing to the Jewish community. No Jew should refuse to buy bricks from the committee. We are sure that your little amount of money will help us in our holy grand ideal for the children in the future. With our greatest respect to you all. H. Weintraub, president, I. Starkman, secretary.

Mrs. J. Miller, chairlady of the Auxiliary; committee, Mesdames Ida Laefsky, Annie Maklaver, B. Cominsky and Annie Tobochnik.

Canada many organizations doing philanthropic work. We need in Jewish life more organizations doing cultural work. Such the Holy Blossom College will endeavour to do.

The Temple Emanu-El of Montreal established a similar college a few weeks ago, and according to latest reports more than 200 pupils have enrolled for its courses. This is splendid and indicates that the Montreal Jewish public desires Jewish knowledge. We believe that that holds good for the Toronto public, and we shall watch with interest the numbers who come to register at the Holy Blossom College for Jewish studies on November 13. Detailed announcement of courses will be found in other sections of the REVIEW.

that a veritable flood of letters and communications would pour into the British Colonial office, and give the officials an inkling of the extent of Jewish feeling on the subject. The Jewish world felt aroused. It did not contrive to convey to the necessary quarters the depth of its resentment.

Mention the wailing wall case and the Balfour Declaration begins to appear like a mockery. The mandatory power pledges itself to do everything in its power to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish national homeland in Palestine —what a sham!

That the British government has been remiss in the execution of its pledge is now common knowledge. Not only have Jabotinsky and the other protestants of the Zionist organization been shouting this fact from the housetops for several years but even in conservative circles the situation has been talked about in a voice louder than a whisper. Col. Wedgewood, a good Britisher, has not been afraid to speak up. And the commission of experts of the Agency made the criticism of the Zionist political situation a major item in its report.

The Jews are determined that the Palestine experiment shall be a success. Perseverance, devotion, heroism—these qualities requisite in a pioneering venture will not be wanting. But truth—painful and oftentimes disheartening—that the political situation is not what the Balfour Declaration contemplated—need not be obscured by a syrupy loyalty. Known and appreciated it will merely constitute one more obstacle which the Jewish national will will overcome in its path to success.

LINDSAY DIVIDENDS

A dividend of twenty-five cents a share on the common stock of C. W. Lindsay & Co., Limited, payable December 1, for the quarter ending November 30, 1928, was declared at a recent meeting of the directors of C. W. Lindsay & Co., Limited, Montreal, musical instrument dealers. The dividend is payable to shareholders of record November 15, 1928. C. W. Lindsay & Co., Limited, was incorporated early this year to acquire the business of C. W. Lindsay, Limited. The company does a wide retail business in pianos, phonographs, organs and radios and maintains stores at various points in eastern Ontario and Quebec. At the same meeting current quarterly dividend on the 6½ per cent. preferred stock of the company was declared to shareholders of record November 15, 1928, payable December 1.

Declaration of the dividend on the common stock is regarded as an indication of the marked progress the company has been making since its securities were offered to the public by Johnston and Ward, Montreal investment bankers, during the early part of the present year. Continuing the steady growth which had characterized the history of the old company, there has been a steady increase in business in all departments, and the present year will probably surpass all previous records, including 1927, when C. W. Lindsay, Limited, celebrated their golden jubilee. The company has the agency for such famous musical instruments as the Steinway and Heintzman pianos, Aeolian reproducing pianos, Lindsay pianos, Brunswick Panatropes and records and Estey organs. Radio products sold include Fada, Stewart-Warner, De Forest Crossley and Brunswick light socket models.

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

tradition which had combined harmoniously both Jewish and English culture, and which was true to the spirit of the religion it followed and loyal to the land in which it had been established for more than one hundred years.

The rabbi of to-day had a special mission to perform, he said, in acting as peace-maker between the fundamental truths of Judaism and the truths of modern science. It was, he felt, the mission of the rabbi to expound the Torah from the pulpit and to leave the discussion of sociology, psychology and literature to lyceum lectures. Congregations were apt to turn their rabbis into social sycophants, with the result that the ministry was coming to be regarded as a "little business for little men." For this reason he particularly urged the congregation to help the rabbi reach out to higher ideals.

The induction committee included Mesdames W. S. Montefiore, Michael Michaels and J. Ettenberg.
